

Learning to Read at Age 52

An Autobiography by Milton Whitley

LCMC Adult Learner

Just five years ago, Milton wasn't able to read and he believed he was "unteachable." His autobiography chronicles a difficult childhood, problems in school, coping with addictions, and the joys of his new life, which resulted from learning to read. Today, Milton is living a life he never dreamed possible. He is employed, serves as a mentor, advocates for adult literacy services, and is studying for his GED. "I'm loving life."

Book price: $10.00

I would like to purchase a copy of Learning to Read at Age 52.

Make checks payable to LCMC, 21 Maryland Ave., Suite 320, Rockville, MD 20850

Name _____

Address _____

Phone _____ Email _____

Number of copies _____ @ $10.00 per copy

My check for $_____ is enclosed. Please mail (Add $1.68 for shipping) I will pick up my book at the LCMC office.